

New York City Class Size 2022-23 Report (Updated)

February 2023

Background on Class Size Calculations

- The New York City Department of Education (NYC DOE) reports on class size twice a year with a preliminary report in November and an updated report in February. This deck reflects the updated report.
- Schools typically update their schedules through the end of each term. Historically, early data analysis includes long-term absences, incomplete scheduling data, and other characteristics that are updated by schools in the February report.
- For grades K-8, average class size is calculated by dividing the number of students as of the audited register date, or “seats filled”, by the number of sections as determined by each student’s official class (e.g. homeroom/advisory) from the Automate the Schools (ATS) system.
- For core courses in grades 6-12, average class size is calculated by the average number of students as of the audited register date in each section of core courses (English, Math, Science and Social Studies) from the STARS system.
- Class size comparisons are made to 2019-20, rather than 2020-21 because during remote and blended learning, new guidance was given to schools to assign students to different official classes depending on their blended or remote cohorts. How schools implemented and documented this change varied, therefore 2020-21 class size data may not reflect true class size.

Citywide Class Size Averages by School Type

Updated

Across all grades in 2022-23, the average class size is 24.0 students per class. There was -0.3 decrease from 2021-22 and a -1.7 decrease from 2019-20.

Note that class size comparisons below are made to 2019-20, rather than 2020-21 because during remote and blended learning, new guidance was given to schools to assign students to different official classes depending on their blended/remote cohorts. How schools implemented and documented this change varied, therefore 2020-21 class size data may not reflect true class size.
